Five Items to Keep in Your Car During Winter

From visiting family to going on shopping trips, you'll probably be on the road more during the holiday season. Whether it's a blizzard, potholes or ice, poor conditions can affect winter roads, leading to accidents for even the most responsible drivers. To help keep you prepared during the colder months, here are five items to keep in your car to give you peace of mind while driving:

- 1. Flashlight: If you'll be traveling or shopping after work, it may already be dark out. If a breakdown occurs, you'll want a flashlight to help you find the items you need.
- 2. Portable charger: A portable charger can help make sure you have the ability to call AAA or use the AAA Mobile App to contact emergency roadside assistance, plus inform your family where you are.
- 3. Blankets and gloves: Extra blankets in the winter are always a good idea, especially while waiting for help to arrive. If you have to scrape ice or dig out a tire, you'll want something to keep your hands warm, too.
- 4. Road flares: These not only alert other drivers to look out for you, but can remind them to be extra careful on a potentially hazardous patch of road.
- 5. Emergency kit: Choose one that includes basic first-aid supplies in case of a minor injury.

Is Your Vehicle Ready for Winter?

Harsh winter conditions make your vehicle work harder, particularly the charging and starting system, headlights, tires and windshield wipers. To get your car prepared for the months ahead, make sure to check the following items:

- Clean any corrosion from battery posts and cable connections.
- Have any engine problems corrected at a repair shop.
- Replace worn windshield-wiper blades and remember to carry an ice scraper.
- Inspect all lightbulbs and replace burned-out bulbs. Clean road grime or clouding from all lenses.
- Have the exhaust system checked for leaks, and look for holes in the trunk and floorboards.
- Examine tires for wear and tear, and check the pressure once a month or before a long trip.

Visit AAA.com to schedule an inspection at one of our Car Care Plus or Approved Auto Repair facilities. AAA members receive 10 percent off labor costs and 5 percent off tires at Car Care Plus facilities.
